

Not only is this a bad decision, one that will lead to further monopolization and a dearth of creativity and real choices in media consumption, but your attempt to hide it from the public ensures your place in history among other great enemies of the people. We will remember your betrayal.